

NATIONAL / COMMUNITY

Blue Mountain Villas scoops prestigious awards

A CUTTING edge luxury home development in Providenciales has scooped two prestigious industry awards.

The Villas at Blue Mountain – an exclusive community being developed on the north shore – was named Best Development and Best Property in the 2006 International Property Awards in London.

It's been a month of successes for the oceanfront scheme – it was also recently named Best Development by Caribbean World Magazine.

Developer Mark Franz said: “We were surprised and delighted to find out that we secured not only one but two of these awards.

“This directly reflects our unique offering - we provide purchasers outstanding quality in terms of the property and added value as part of a planned and professionally managed development.”

The Villas at Blue Mountain comprises ten luxury homes on a seven-acre site affording stunning views of the island and a secluded beach.

Each eco-friendly property boasts a large infinity-edge pool and outdoor kitchen with wet bar, high-tech security system, internet and satellite TV.

Architect John Redmond of Redmond and Associates proudly displays new awards.

Now in their 12th year, the International Property Awards are open to applicants from all over the world.

The ceremony was attended by more than 500 professionals representing 45 different countries.

It was hosted by rock legend Rick Wakeman with former BBC royal correspondent, Jennie Bond, also in attendance with a film crew capturing the evening's events on camera.